Workshop Session: The Critical Art of Conversation

Three critical conversations for every woman in leadership:

1. Self-deception and the impact it can have on your leadership.
2. Identifying trusted companions who can speak honestly into your life
3. The one conversation you have avoided but need to have in order to move forward.

Personal and organizational problems are often the result of a little known problem called self-deception. This session will touch the inner life of each leader as we reveal the brush strokes painted on our leadership palette. Join this network of Christian women leaders as we investigate tools and resources to help us embrace the necessary conversations of leadership.
